Current job: "Production Manager for Austrorosas Ltd, a company that produces and exports cut roses in Ecuador, South America. As an agricultural engineer I was in contact with the production side of cut flowers since 2002. I also got a post-graduate in irrigation and fertilisation in Israel back in 2004. In 2006 I decided to do an MBA between Van Hall Larenstein and the Royal Agricultural College in the UK. This master opened my mind and gave me the knowledge and the confidence to develop myself in the administrative part of the agribusiness sector. Besides my job, I am developing a project conjoint with the Ecuadorian government. Before I came to my country I was working with a Belgium company (fertilizers) as an international account manager for the Spanish market."
